

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns an electrical plug connector with a housing having a housing body and a trunk projecting therefrom for receiving electrically connected contact elements for establishing contact with corresponding contact portions of an associated receptacle as well as with spring-acting catch arms on the trunk for making 5 the housing fast in corresponding recesses of the receptacle.